I would like to go back to experience this type travel, but not having A/C in the car would be miserable during the summer!! You were lucky if you had a model that hung out the passenger side window you put cold water or ice in to keep you cool. Kind of like a portable swamp cooler - haha. Book by Baeder, John

From Publishers WeeklyBaeder, an artist and author of Diners, here chronicles America's prewar highway culture with reproductions of postcards, many of which are photocards and linen cards. He also tells stories about the often-garish pictures and includes photos of some of the motels, cottages and road stops as they appear today. PW enjoyed this
